

John Wheatley, owner of L&W Bedding, welcomes Jerry Gascon back into his store.

Meet the Quad Cities Best Mattress Store!

Jerry Gascon recently bought a mattress from L&W Bedding and wanted to thank John for his craftsmanship on his new mattress. Jerry suffers from high blood pressure, high cholesterol as well as diabetes and neuropathy. As a veteran of the Army, serving in Desert Storm, Jerry has had some health issues and a new bed from

L&W Bedding has helped provide him with the best sleep in a long time!

The L&W Bedding Difference:

The first thing anyone who meets John Wheatley will notice is his passion for his craft. His mattresses are not produced in some impersonal factory which cuts corners on quality to stretch profits. No detail is spared when they are designing and constructing an L&W mattress.

Wheatley's knowledge of bed construction is encyclopedic and he shares it all for free. Even if you don't buy a bed from him he wants consumers to share in his wealth of experience. "We try to provide education. We are building a high quality bed, like mattress companies used to do. We are an old fashioned bedding company. So that kind of goes back to those pictures on the walls. You start looking at the pictures from the old days and you just think about the quality from days gone by. That's what we are all about."

L&W beds are made to last and keep their shape for a long time. They not only out distance the competition on quality but they beat the competition on customer service. Check out their Facebook for customer reviews.
